FROM THE HEAD OF SCHOOL

Ixpect that I am as guilty as the next person when it comes to doing something I think will be difficult, boring or simply irrelevant. Take this for example. When asked to prepare a short piece for the yearbook, I immediately began my avoidance techniques. I made excuses, found more interesting projects to do, wrote a reminder to do it tomorrow and just conveniently forgot that it was due. And now, the deadline is past and others cannot do their job because they are waiting for me.

BCS demands a great deal from us all - students, teachers, houseparents, support staff and administrators. Everyone has moments when they use avoidance strategies and of course we regret it later. On the other hand, many in this community have gone out of their way to do more than is expected of them - help a new student, give tours to visiting families, bake a cake for someone's birthday, tutor a student in difficulty, be the staff advisor for a student activity, coach, organize buses, trips or special events, run extra labs to prepare for an exam, and to simply be a friend to someone in need even when they might prefer to be doing something or be with someone else.

I can speak from first hand knowledge as the BCS community gave us a very special wedding gift last October. To know that the members of the choir put in extra hours of practice, that Amanda Loney would sing a solo in front of so many strangers, that most if not all of the Senior football team played, showered (I hope!) and changed into their number ones to come to the service, that the wardens and servers gave up their Saturday morning to help, that Barb Munster and the Dining Hall staff would prepare a luncheon fit for royalty, that Rev. Peacock would provide very special words for the occasion and that so many students and staff were in St. Martin's Chapel with our families has meant more to Joe and I than perhaps anyone can imagine. It was a day that we will never forget and one which showed me in no uncertain terms how special this School and the people in it are.

For those of you who leave in June '97, I hope that the values you experienced at BCS will stay with you. Remember the satisfaction you got from a job well done and the frustration you likely felt when you avoided that which was not so interesting or relevant at the time but which still had to get done eventually. To our returning students, I encourage you to accept all the challenges that BCS will put before you knowing that you will be supported by everyone around you.

What a relief - one more job done and it wasn't so bad once I got started!

Send-ins & Check-ins

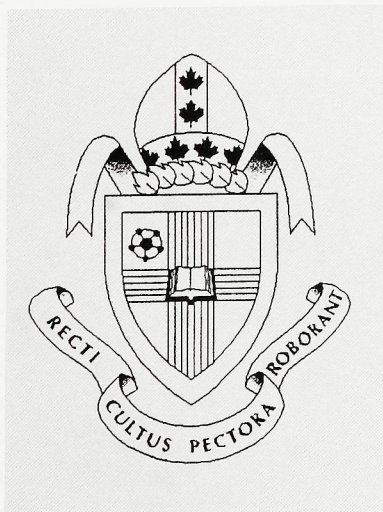

To the Weekend-Prefect, The Prefect that Was, and the Prefect That Would Have Been.
 In the beginning there were eight happy little prefects sitting in a room,
 Then the spawn of Spider-don gave a prophecy of doom.
 Alas come fall, there were only 7, that's all for Annie K had flown off on her broom.
 Now to this seven, you might add eleven and a magical number appears,
 Sadly, sadly it soon became known only one of us could claim such years Hmmm . . .
 A strange misunderstanding did occur and our numbers diminished once more
 And only five then six, stuck it out for kicks
 Before two more could brighten our door.
 But by the years end, our numbers did mend
 No matter the figures, we'd lived through the rigours and despite irritation, survived orientation Bashed our way through (with a problem or two) until along came spring, did the last bell ring?
 And in the end, around the bend
 Eight happy little prefects in a room.
 There were still . . .
 Many thanks to Dr. Booth and Major Turner for your help getting us through this year!

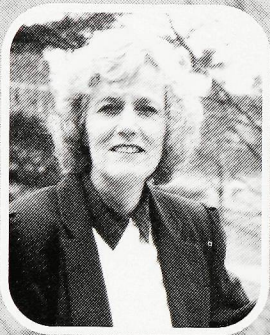

THE PREFECTS

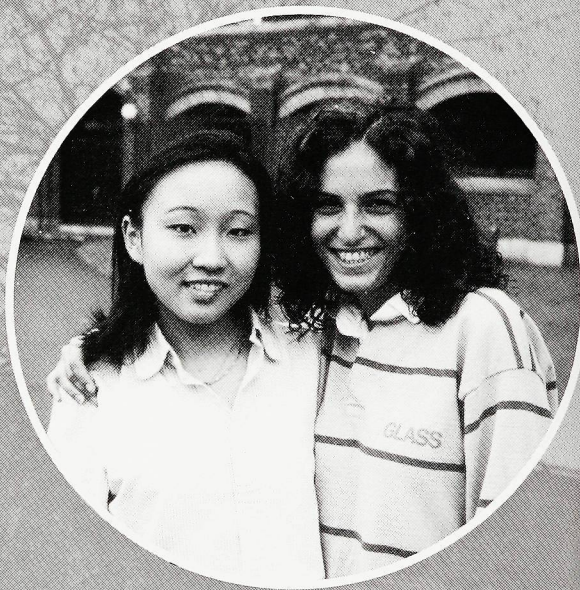

HOUSES

GLASS HOUSE

Three intruders sneak into Glass and observe our de-ranked twisted chiquitas in many of our different lifestyles. First, they see It chasing Claudia while she plugs her nose from Piper's chickpea remnants sneaking away to see George at the Inn. They view Kelly trying to burn her new room down while Alayna whines 'bout her dreams of Imp. Catherine, in the corner, slowly turns into a vegetable. Sarah R. is Clueless while Mel snogs Travelle. Mrs. Black calls a house meeting and brings in the punch while we discuss our own hedgehog, Liz, meeting the fashion world. Alanna complains about gum in her hair and Tat reports that she lost her Winnie the Pooh Victoria's Secret bra. Marissa and Katherine have reached the 105th straight day without a fight, at the expense of many trips to Michigan, and 42 teddy bear casualties. Alina and Julia are cute as they giggle away. Emily flashes the Stairs to a Spicy tune. The common room clears as day turns to night, Sandy and Caroline are left in the common room. Caroline contemplates her latest crush over Kids in the Hall, as Sandy molds into the couch. Song Yee is still on the phone.

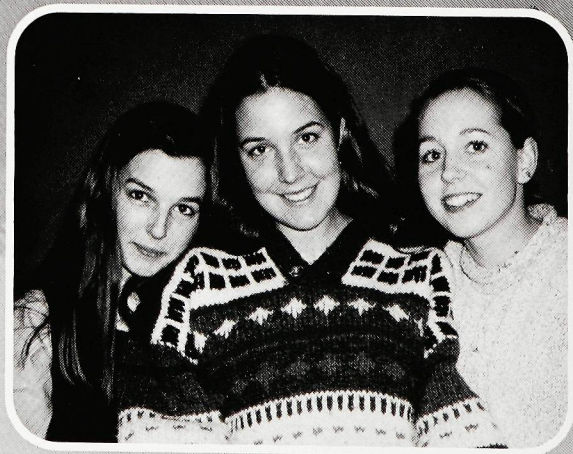

The morning dawns as Erika screeches morning wake up from miles below. Alex, somehow finding the time to breathe between meals, blasts some Gangsta tunes. Steph forgets to do clear out cause she is talking to the wall. Blah Blah. Jennifer wakes from another Cheng Yi dream. Debbie is listening to Michael Jackson, late for clear out again. The girls trudge through their day and come back to catch the last minutes of General Hospital, and Malu breaks our concentration on Jax and Brenda saying, "Can I try it?" "It's just water Malu," "Can I still try some?" Jamie Campbell pours another bowl of cereal and wonders, "Is there really fat in sugar?" Jen-ay comes in selling cook-ays. Kimmy is out fishing for Marlons and Maria bounces in and asks if anyone wants to do aerobics! Beatriz screams and claps over the jello sunshine of the afternoon. It's now dinnertime and LSD (Al-leash-a) A.K.A. Madame St-Jacques has shared her wisdom. Liz Cross is munching her own delicacies in the common room as Ms. Harding chases her clones down the hall. Monica and Karen debate over Saylah Moon and Teenage Mutant Ninja turtles.

Marina tries to cut the apron strings as Valerie ties a knot. During prep Vero goes missing in action, as Katherine K. is up in her room building a bomb to blow up the school. Mirei is going to Lenn to "study." Hisako is our original crazy girl. Sarah comes to visit for Old Boys, but returned for the new.

Marjan envies Catherine M. for her last name. Alexa, a.k.a 007, has been under the couch this whole time spying on the dust, and is the only one to know the real side of Mme. Forest.

Mr. Black kicks out the intruders, and turns on the alarm system as the H.C's settle down to another crisis conference over tea.

ROSS GIRLS

Hmmm . . . let's see . . . a typical day for Ross Girls.

Well, it all begins in the morning with a mad dash as the girls scurry around trying not to be late for chapel. Audrey and Caroline arrive at the same time, but no one can tell them apart - they are wearing the same clothes. Of course, no one hears the bell over Marie-Claude - she's as loud as plaid but just as comfortable. Or maybe it's Emily's perpetual whistling that obstructed our ears. In Chapel, Catherine starts talking again but Mrs. Goodwin does her best to keep things down to a dull roar. This can be hard at times, especially when Veronique wears a new shade of nail polish and Marina a new ring. Meanwhile, Kit scans the room for all her boys while Alexandra daydreams about Bob! Unfortunately Nat interrupts her train of thought with "Can Ross Girls please stay after Chapel?" Titch soon announces that she "taught she taw a putty cat." Then Chapel is over. "Thank God" says Kristen as she hobbles down the stairs - "I was just about to cane someone."

The day moves along. Anna tries desperately to trade her Phantom of the Opera book for some Chapstick. A nearby Claude is shocked - once again - by what her virgin ears have to withstand. Low and behold, break finally arrives. Wonder who the lucky birthday girl will be. There's a mob around a cake and consequently Kira is squished into the wall - serves her right. You shouldn't push!

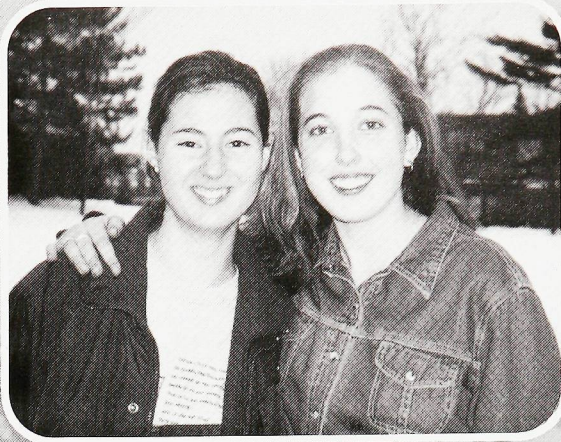

There are two more classes in which Karine does some serious contemplation. Sciences + Summer = Liberal Arts X Guilt = SCIENCES.

After school Marie Helene gets ready for crease determined to train and push herself. She schemes, "I'll get you back next year Tat." Amanda is still trying to figure out who Fern Dangelise is until it finally hits her like a flock of beaver.

Two lucky girls are planning out their evenings on the phone. We hear Melanie say "Are you coming over tonight?" Eunice tells someone about her midnight crisis at Seb's house. Janet is still looking for the perfect man. Unfortunately Melanie is still waiting for Dad but as soon as she leaves, the Common Room becomes desperately quiet - and in the distance you can barely hear a faint voice sighing: "Where are my girls . . ."

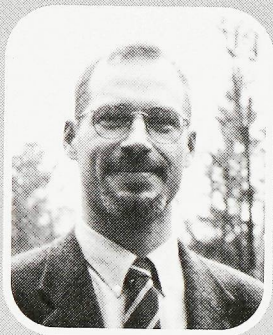

Until tomorrow . . .

SMITH HOUSE

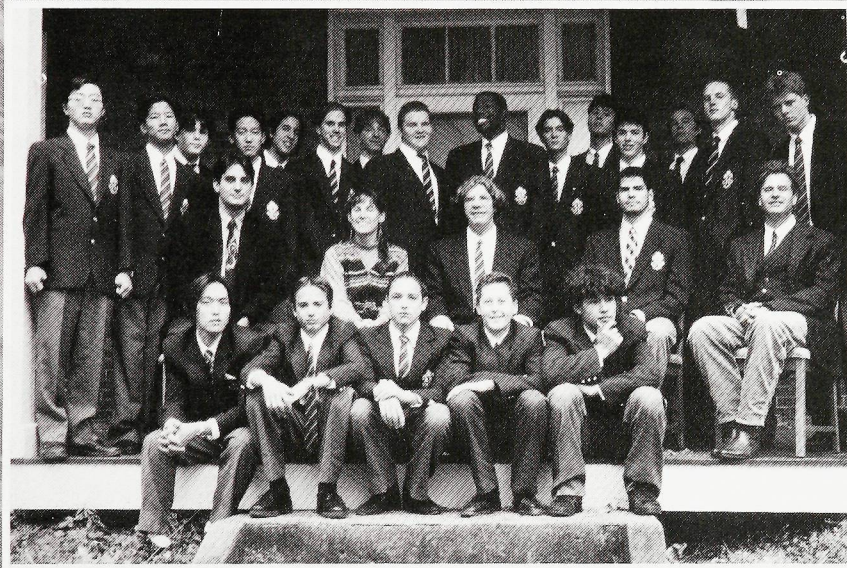

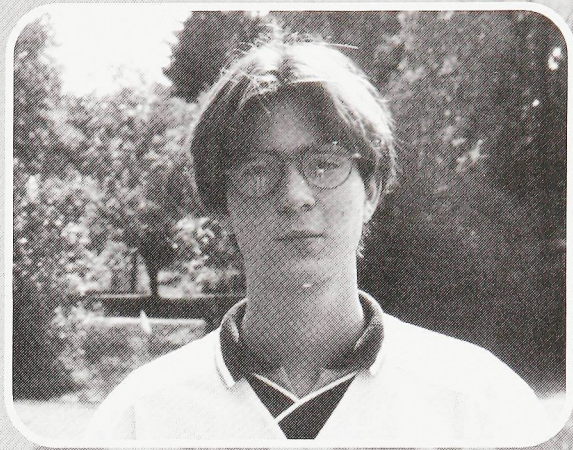

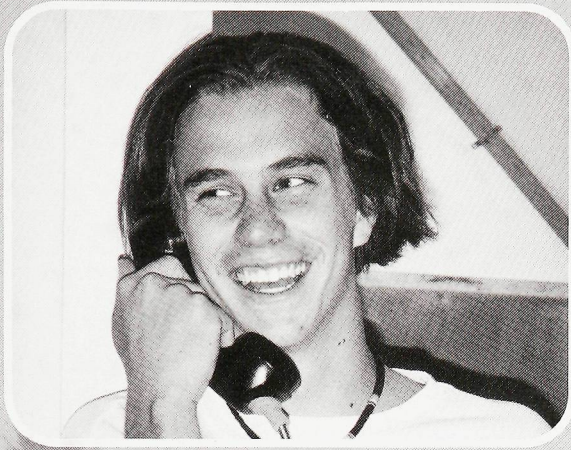

As the sun rises, a holy ray of light is sprung forth from the heavens to fall upon the vestal realms of Smith House. Chris Wang floats angelically from room to room shouting, "The time is to get out of bed." But Marlon is already posing in front of the mirror. Quickly everyone crowds into the communal showers where the morning match of soap soccer begins. Charles doesn't want to play. Little cutie pie Ragueneau is already posing for another BCS bulletin while Derek is stuck outside because Alayna tied his leash to a tree. Matt died in the flames that started burning from his prefect's tie and Pat woke up excited that he had a master plan to take over the world, but while trying to explain it he abruptly stopped and said, "Oh forget it guys, you just don't understand." At school Simon comes dancing in, late for chapel, only to be knocked down by Mr. Jackson's booming baritone. Sasha needs two loonies. Tim doesn't have two loonies but they find two in their Campbell's soup, mmm mmm good. Etienne thinks the world has ended and decides to take everyone with him. Roberto is in Montreal soaking the streets and Fred is having problems because he has been washing his hair with bubble bath (he doesn't know though). Jae Won is watching his favourite movie which has SEVEN STARS, Jorge is lost in his bed-head. Kozuya can't use the phone because the credit on his card ran out and Lee is making a white robe maybe to be a ghost since he's already around.

The school day comes to an end and the sun sets as Chin and Louis Phillippe order food with a side order of Julios. Chuck beats himself . . in pool. While the rest of the house goes to the Lion to hear Mr. Mooney sing and then off to the Maysen to meet Mr. Williams. And has Ben really skipped town?

But where is Saad . . . the house mascot . . is he still at the Maysen? I guess it's a mystery. Oh yeah, we forgot about Yu-Yuan, how could we? Goodnight moon.

SOUTH HOUSE

It's an ordinary morning in South House. Twenty three alarms go off, and twenty three tired students hit their snooze buttons. It's Phil's turn to do wake up and he's running down the halls banging pots and pans yelling "Wake up!" Joedy's doing laps and saying, "Bouy, I ain't gettin' no more laps." Adam's walking down the halls muttering "I need more sleep." Seven twenty-five rolls around and Mr. Bray is yelling "Out of the house! Where's Ryan? Has he left for chapel?" No, Ryan is still asleep.

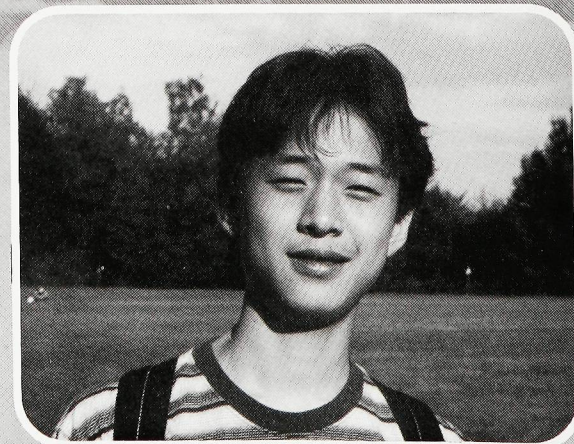

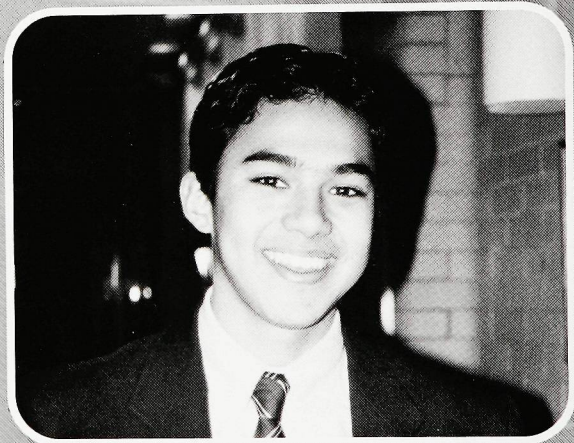

We love the mornings. Erik is first up to the dining hall doing his part to get the day over with as soon as possible. In chapel, everyone is silent. But, what's the sound coming from the first row? It's Kevin L., Jake, Mike and Chris talking and laughing like fools. Joedy's sitting in the teacher's chair. Miss Currie says, "Joedy, get your butt up."

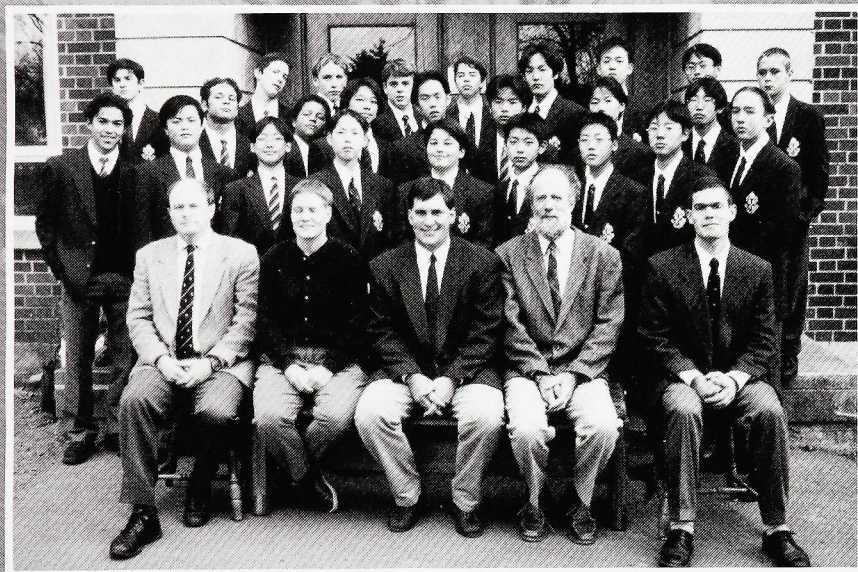

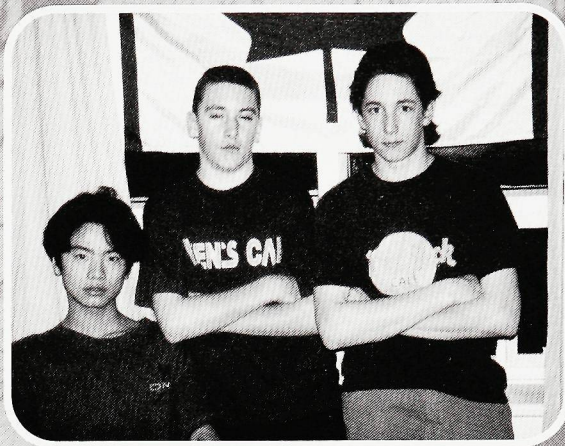

After school where do we go? Ryan's sleeping again. Charlie, David and Robert are watching Spiderman and Mr. Dutton wants us to turn that infernal TV off. View and Pholkrit are in North with Pan and Dave B. is snowboarding. We can't find Kevin H. but he must be here because his shoes are in the middle of the hall.

It's everyone's favourite time and Mr. Dutton is talking to himself. "Prep, gentlemen." Joedy forgot his bag. Kaven is trying to escape from the crowd of people trying to buy last minute tuck. Ricky says he'll gladly pay you back Tuesday if you buy him a candy bar today. Sergio is writing letters to his Mexican girlfriends. Mr. Slocombe is watching soccer and David D. is staring at the empty space where his computer used to be.

The break in prep brings out the beast in us. Phil's playing rap music. Shige's trying to make a deal with Takashi and Kohki. Simon is playing computer games. Jake K. let Jake, the dog, in and is chasing him around the house. Joedy is beating up Mr. Bray or is it the other way round? Alyssa's eating a shoe and Mr. Bray is trying to get her to say "daddy" while Mrs. Bray says to him "Can I speak to you in OUR house?" We can't forget to mention Adam twice, with antlers.

When prep is over, we hear Dick in the hall saying "Inspection in fifteen minutes". Clothes go under beds, papers are stuffed in back packs and what's that smell coming from Dave and Robert's room? Dick takes a look at Joedy's room and gives him another lap. Finally with two small words the day comes to a close. "Lights Out!"

WILLIAMS HOUSE

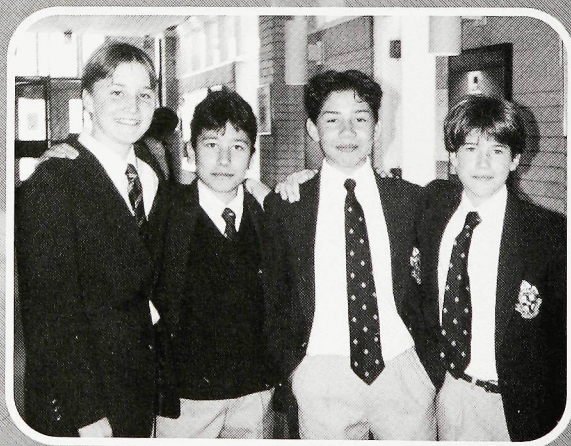

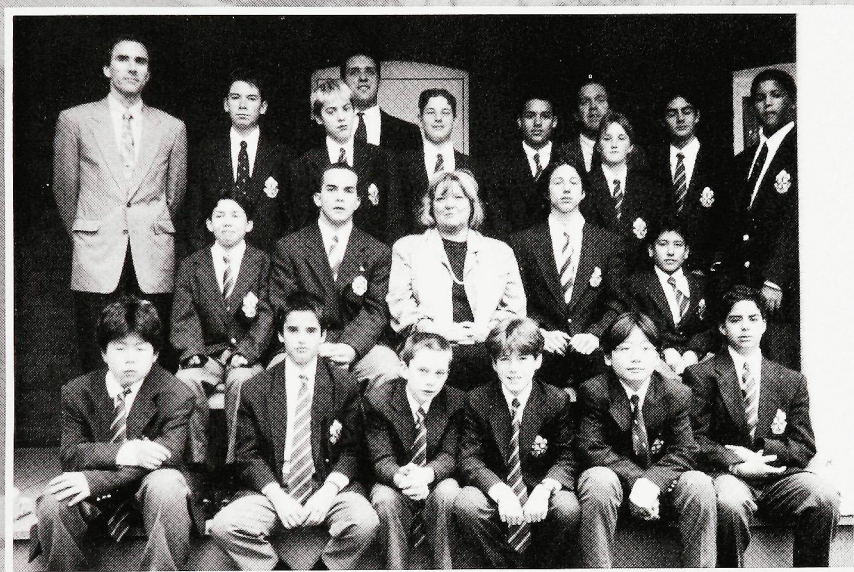

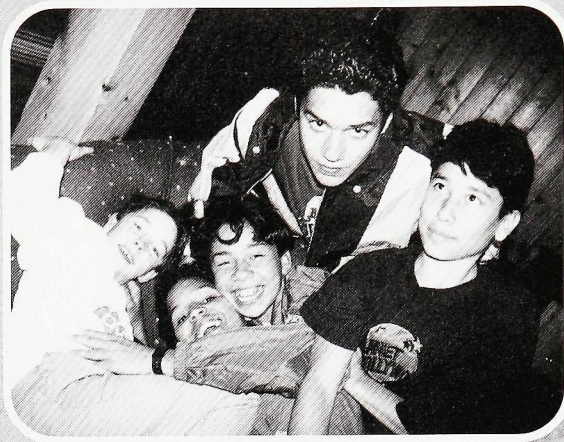

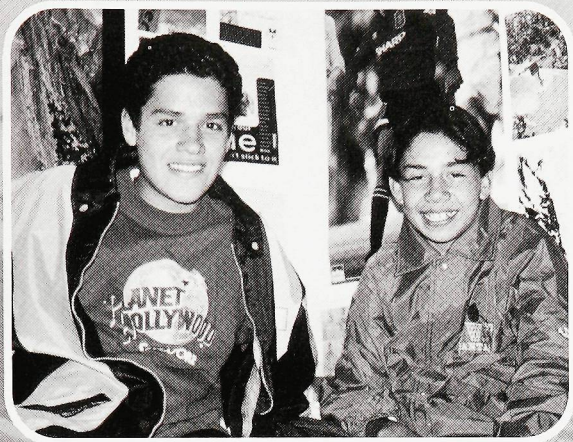

The administration would like to inform the members that after a period of having pink wallpaper in some rooms, Williams House has once again become a male residence. The official language is Spanish and there are two study prefects living in the penthouse.

What! Santiago is going out with a girl in Form V! Is Hector gated again? David E. has managed to get his magazines confiscated by the administration while Alexis is on the phone with Pep's or is it Jessi? Where is Mr. Peacock? Why do I have to check in? Eduardo, Daniel que passo con Audrey and Caroline? Chacha is looking for his Head and Shoulders. Quiet down, Sandy! I'm trying to get some sleep. Run Hatim, run. Maxwell will ditto that. So who is the guy in the house stealing all the drinks? Nicolas, "Mrs. J. in Mexico we . . ." Willie thinks that girl is hot but Kevin H. has been traded. Martin, the little big man with the studly hairstyle. David C. "What? No English speak." Tara is still in the ER recovering from last night's duty. Mr. Daigle, get your dog off me! Paul., you instigator, stop teasing Hatim. Dear Mrs. J., a big change this year, wasn't it? Thanks for making the adjustments and for all your motherly attention. I'm sure we will always remember and thank you.

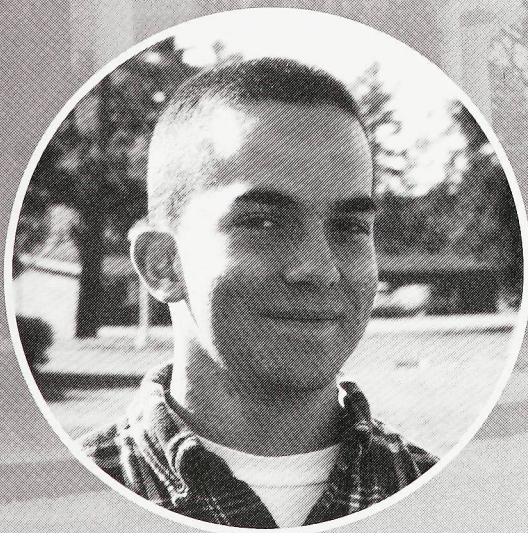

The Two Prefects

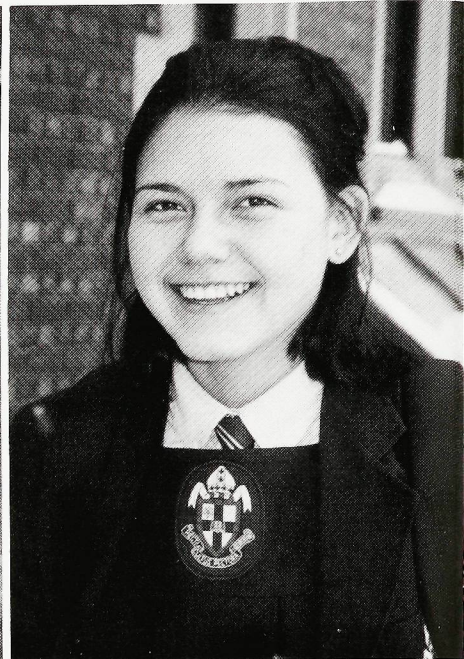

Well Sach, you have lied yourself to sleep, a soccer ball at your feet. Tomorrow we shall wear nothing less than a white clean pressed starched shirt with the complimentary purple white stripes. But yet, the Survivors will continue their journey. When are Greg and Ollie taking you out? You have made it all the way, Lifer. I hope it turns out the same in the real world. Hold on to the memories. Well done Son. Your partner, Jose.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Jean Giraudoux's The Madwoman of Chaillot is not an easy play to produce, but, in late November, the BCS Players enjoyed a very successful five night run.

Set in Paris in the recent future, Madwoman is a story that pits good against evil; it is a fantasy that begins on the streets of Paris and ends near the gates of hell. It is a story about the good people, those who care about each other more than they care about themselves and it is given to them to save the world. Their leader, Aurelia, the Madwoman of Chaillot, is unaware that there exist among them the heartless, the power-happy, the greedy - the people who are ruining the world. As soon as she learns of it, she moves into action, develops a plan and executes it with un-nerving efficiency.

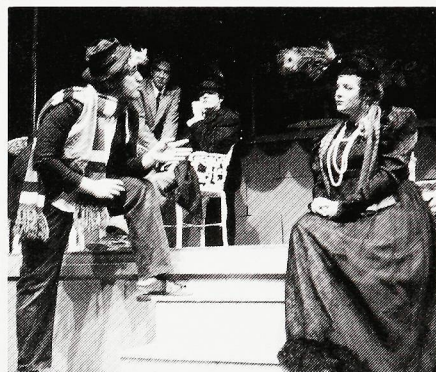

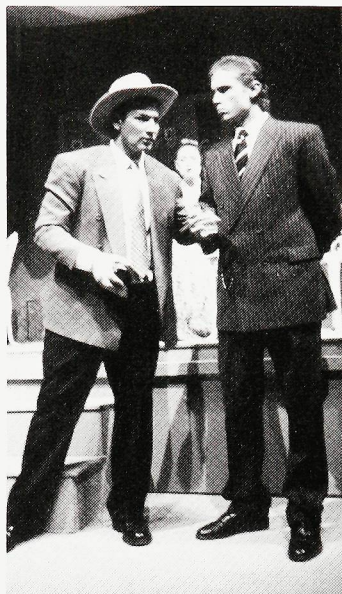

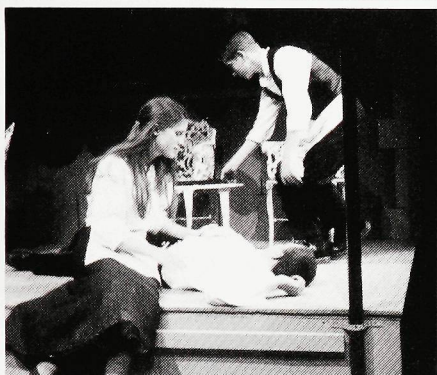

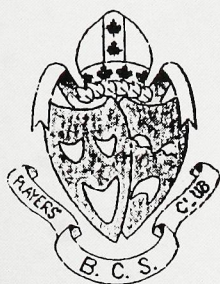

The cast of twenty-four actors was led by Amanda Loney in the title role and Steve Notman as the Ragpicker; these two set the example for concentration, imagination and sheer hard work and the rest of the cast followed this example.

Technically demands are great. Two very different sets were created - one exterior street scene, the other interior with a secret door to hell - and hell was accessed by the elevator that our stage does not have - did not have! Costumes were compiled by Margaret Rand, set construction and stage management fell to Mike Mooney, Garth Digby and their faithful crew, Lewis Evans designed the set and joined Charles Peacock for the direction of the play.

ALIEN

Announcing the theme of Carnival '97 was our best announcement all year. Thursday was the opening ceremonies and the Carnival Committee arrived in a limo. The Opening Ceremonies were followed by the Great Race. When night came, we had a bonfire and a search through the woods for aliens. Friday crept up on us and even though we had horrible weather, we had fun at ski day. The dance was a blast and the lip sync was the finale to a great carnival.

L'année scolaire 96-97 s'est terminée avec force en ce qui a trait au théâtre. Après La Folle de Chaillot en novembre dernier, qui connut certes un franc succès, la pièce inédite d'Alan Ayckbourn Les Amis Invisibles a comblé les attentes du public. Les deux metteurs en scène (Maryse Forest et Lewis Evans) ont eu énormément de plaisir à monter cette pièce tant sur le plan interprétation que sur le plan technique. Ils ont dû relever plusieurs défis car l'oeuvre exigeait une mise en scène complexe et techniquement difficile. Les comédiens pour leur part ont pu profiter de ce texte simple et évocateur et ainsi parfaire leur interprétation. Toute l'équipe technique a dû user d'imagination pour répondre aux exigences des metteurs en scène et a relevé un magnifique défi.

Le théâtre à BCS ne cesse de «grandir» et l'implication des élèves est à noter de façon particulière. On ne peut compter le nombre d'heures qu'entraîne tout montage et notre Collège peut s'enorgueillir de tels résultats. Il est fascinant de travailler en équipe et le Players' Club forme un groupe où l'esprit est animé par une belle complicité.

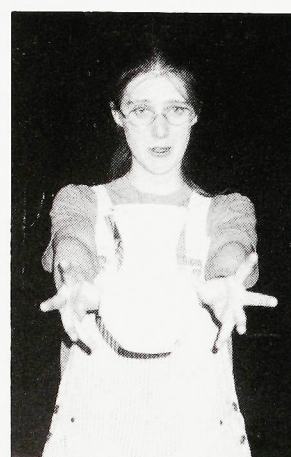

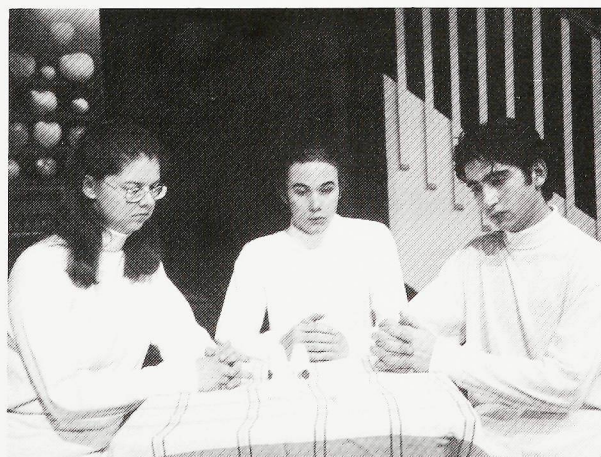

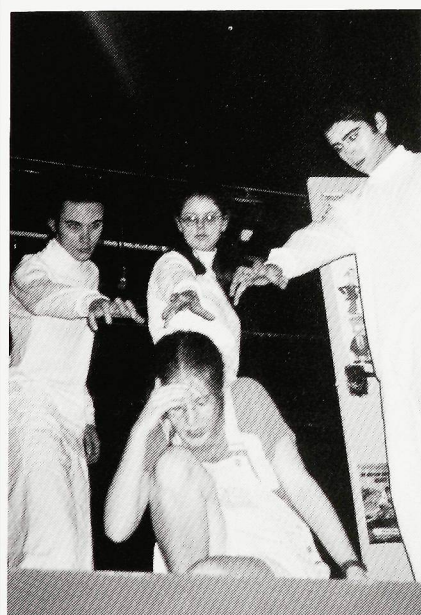

Depuis quelques années, nous avons la chance de travailler dans un théâtre où l'équipement est de plus en plus perfectionné ce qui nous permet de monter des spectacles de niveau supérieur. Le public a pu se rendre compte de cet aspect dans Les Amis Invisibles. La magie du théâtre bat son plein à BCS et l'an prochain vous promet d'autres belles surprises.

Easy Knowledge

We sit as friends who have just met.
Watching as peace is interrupted.
Pandora's box opens, just for a moment . . .
then closes just as quickly while the figures fade back into the gloom.
And the air around us stills again, like a glassy lake on a windless night.
I've always loved silence: abstract concentrations of random ideas.
And alone, my being wraps herself around me.
This blanket of companionship is protection from the grating of abandonment.
Sitting near is an extension of my own self; strange for someone I do not know.
Silence dances in the hypnotic flames.
Speech is impossible as I read the bonfire's light.
The silence gently covers us.
Far from the tensioned weight of a thousand expectations, it is the comfortable, comforting quiet of understanding that envelopes us.
